Lexington, December 29.

John Turner, who was confined in the jail and penitentiary house, under a charge of horse-stealing, and escaped, but voluntarily returned to confinement, has again eloped. It is however confidently believed by some, that he will again return.

Two prisoners who were confined in the Franklin district jail, to await trial—a white man, on a charge of murder; the other a man of color, confined for theft, have also escaped.

OBITUARY.

MEMENTO MORI.

Died lately, at Frankfort, from great Constitutional weakness, the political Infant, commonly called, the "lawyers' birth." The tragic history of this unfortunate child, is sufficient to draw the tear of sympathy from every human eye.

When it came into the world, its countenance was so evidently flamed with the superannuated features of its true parent, as well as with every symptom of intellectual debility, which it derived from the midwife, a very near relation, who took care of its introduction into life, that it was very generally conceived to have been born a natural fool.

Relations, however, do not view their near connections in this light. The infant was supposed to have merit; and with this partiality on the part of the Granny, to whose especial care it devolved, it was introduced to the world, for support and protection, and notwithstanding its many defects, found some friends.

This humanity, however, was in a great measure owing to the evident inability of the midwife, to support it.

After occasioning infinite trouble and expense to its friends, it was secured, for a short time, from the jaws of death by the unremitting care, bestowed on its health. It obtained some vigour; so that hopes were entertained of its recovery, from its natural maladies, it was put out for further improvement, among strangers.

The seeds of disease, however, were not entirely eradicated.—A relapse took place.

It was sent home to its friends and relation, the Midwife, with such dismal symptoms of approaching dissolution, that it was abandoned to its unhappy fate.

Its friends no longer acknowledged it.—The old Lady started as if at a "Goblin damned!" and the unhappy infant sank to the grave, beneath the pious lamentations of its broken hearted relations.

It is said that so great has been the trouble in maintaining the existence of this unfortunate child, together with the grief experienced on the part of the benevolent old Granny, that she is about to decline the profession forever.—Notwithstanding its deceptiveness, it was so highly valued by its doating parents, that it has cost the state between 4 and 500 dollars, to prolong an existence, which nature intended to deny it.

BY YESTERDAY'S MAIL.

Congress of the United States.

President's Reply to the Answer of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Representatives.

Compelled by the habits of a long life, as well as by all the principles of society and government, which I could ever understand and believe, to consider the great body of the people as the source of all legitimate authority, no less than of all efficient powers, it is impossible for me to receive this address from the immediate representatives of the American people, at this time, and in this place, without emotions which it would be improper to express, if any language could convey them.

May the spirit which animated the great founder of this city, devout to future generations, and may the wisdom, magnanimity and steadiness, which marked the events of his public life, be imitated in all succeeding ages.

I thank you, gentlemen, for your assurance, that the judiciary system shall receive your deliberate attention.

With you, gentlemen, I sincerely hope, that the final result of the negotiations now pending with France, may prove as fortunate for our country, as they have been commenced with sincerity, and prosecuted with deliberation and caution.

With you, I cordially agree, that a long as a predatory war is carried on against our commerce, we should sacrifice the interests, and disappoint the expectations of our constituents, should we for a moment, relax that system of maritime defence, which has resulted in such beneficial effects. With you, I confidently believe, that few persons are to be found within the United States, who do not admit, that a navy well organized, must constitute the natural and efficient defence of this country, against all foreign hostility.

Those who recollect the distresses and danger to this country, in former periods, from the want of arms, must exult in the assurance, from their representatives, that we shall soon frown upon foreign countries, not only in the number, but in the quality of the arms completed from our own manufacturers.

With you, gentlemen, I fully agree, that the great increase of revenue, is a proof that the measures of maritime defence were founded in wisdom. This policy has raised us in the esteem of foreign nations. That national spirit, and those latent energies, which had not been, and are not yet fully known to any, were not entirely forgotten by those, who had lived long enough to see in former times, their operation, and some of their effects; our fellow citizens were undoubtedly prepared to meet every event, which national honor, or national security could render necessary. That it is to be hoped, are secured at the cheapest and earliest rate. If not, they will be secured at more expense.

I thank you, gentlemen, for your assurance, that the various subjects recommended to your consideration, shall receive your deliberate attention. No farther evidence is wanting to convince me of the zeal and sincerity with which the house of representatives regard the public good.

I pray you, gentlemen, to accept of my best wishes for your health and happiness.

JOHN ADAMS.

Washington, Nov. 27, 1800.

ANSWER.

TO JOHN ADAMS,
President of the United States.

SIR,

Impressed with the important truth, that the hearts of rulers and people are in the hand of the Almighty, the Senate of the United States most cordially join in your invocations for appropriate blessings upon the government and people of this Union.

We meet you, Sir, and the other branch of the national legislature, in the city, which is honored by the name of our late hero and sage, the illustrious Washington, with sentiments and emotions, which exceed our power of description.

While we congratulate ourselves on the convention of the legislature at the permanent seat of government; and ardently hope that permanence and stability will be communicated as well to the government itself, as to its seat; our minds are irresistibly led to deplore the death of him who bore so honorable and efficient a part in the establishment of both.

Great indeed would have been our gratification, if this sum of earthly happiness, had been completed, by seeing the government thus peacefully convened at this place; but we derive consolation from a belief that a moment in which we are destined to experience the loss we deplore, was fixed by that being whose counsels cannot err; and from a hope, that since in this seat of government which bears his name, his earthly remains will be deposited, the members of Congress, and all who inhabit the city, with these memorials before them, will retain his virtues in lively recollection, and make his patriotism, morals and piety, models for imitation.—And permit us to add, Sir, that it is not among the least of our consolations that you, who have been his companion and friend, from the dawning of our national existence, and trained in the same school of exertion to effect our independence, are still preserved, by a gracious Providence, in health and activity, to exercise the functions of a chief magistrate.

The question whether the local power over the district of Columbia; vested by the Constitution in the Congress of the United States, shall be immediately exercised, is of great importance, and in deliberating upon it, we shall naturally be led to weigh the attending circumstances and every probable consequence of the measures which may be prepared.

The several subjects for legislative consideration, contained in your speech to both Houses of Congress, shall receive from the Senate all the attention which they can give, when contemplating those objects both in respect to their national importance, and the additional weight that is given them by your recommendation.

We deprecate with you, Sir, all spirit of innovation from whatever quarter it may arise, which may impair the sacred bond that cements the different parts of this empire; and we trust, that under the protection of Divine Providence, the wisdom and virtue of the citizens of the United States will deliver our national compact unimpaired to a grateful posterity.

From past experience, it is impossible for the Senate of the United States to doubt of your zealous co-operation with the legislature in every effort to promote the general happiness and tranquility of the union.

Accept, Sir, our warmest wishes for your health and happiness.

THE PRESIDENT'S REPLY.

Mr. President, and

Gentlemen of the Senate,
For this excellent address, so respectful to the memory of my illustrious predecessor, which I receive from the Senate of the United States at this time, and in this place, with peculiar satisfaction, I pray you to accept my unfeigned acknowledgements. With you I ardently hope, that permanence and stability will be communicated, as well to the government itself, as to its beautiful and commanding seat. With you I deplore the death of that hero and sage who bore so honorable & efficient part in the establishment of both. Great indeed would have been my gratification, if his scene of earthly happiness had been completed by seeing the government thus peacefully convened at this place, himself at its head. But while we submit to the decisions of heaven, whose counsels are infallible to us, we cannot but hope, that the members of congress, the officers of government, and all who inhabit the city, or the country, will retain his virtues in lively recollections, and make his patriotism, morals and piety, models for imitation.

I thank you, gentlemen, for your assurance that the several subjects of legislative consideration, recommended in my communication to both houses, shall receive from the senate a deliberate and candid attention.

With you, gentlemen, I sincerely deplore all spirit of innovation, which may weaken the sacred bonds that connect the different parts of this nation and government, and with you I trust, that under the protection of Divine Providence, the wisdom and virtue of our citizens will deliver our national compact unimpaired, to a free, prosperous happy and great posterity. To this end it is my fervent prayer, that in this city the fountain of wisdom may be always open, and the streams of eloquence for ever flow. Here may the youth of this extensive country for ever look up without disappointment, not only to the monuments and memorials of the dead, but to the examples of the living, in the members of congress, and officers of government, for finished models of virtues graces, talents, and accomplishments, which constitute the dignity of human nature, and lay the only foundation for the prosperity or duration of empires.

BALTIMORE, December 2.

SUICIDE.

On Monday evening, the 10th inst. a young man 18 years of age, by the name of James Burt, living with Lieut. Noah B. Kimball, of Grafton, shot himself. He originated from the shaking quakers at Shirley. He left them about 18 months ago. On a recent visit to his parents, he met with unkind reception. This unnatural treatment is the only reason that can be assigned for his premature death. He was not permitted to see his mother, and was treated with great coldness by his father. Such is the absurdity of these feelings that they renounce parental affection, and act contrary to the dictates of reason, and religion.

ALEXANDRIA, November 29.

The British Minister Mr. Litton, has obtained from his court leave of absence from this country for two years. He has set off for Norfolk where he is to take shipping in the frigate Andromache, for the West Indies. He is to be succeeded by Mr. Merry, the present Charge de Affairs for the British government in Sweden.

OUR ENVOYS.

Nov. October 8.

The Envys of the American Government, whose object it is to perfect the work of reconciliation desired by all the civil and military authorities eager to render their homage to an allied nation, acknowledged since the year 1778, as the most sincere friends of the French nation. A guard of honor, of 50 men, has been sent to them; for which they returned thanks according to custom. They would already have set sail if contrary winds had not retarded the departure of the American Frigate Portsmouth. The calm will keep them here eight days."

The Rhode-Island papers, received by this day's mail, give the complete return for electors, by which it appears, that the federal ticket has carried by a majority of 254.

ELIZABETH-TOWN, Dec. 4.

We have seen a letter of a late date, from a gentleman in London, professed of the most correct information, who says, that in his opinion, the prospect of accommodation between this country and England, in relation to the 6th article of the British treaty, is at an end, and that he fears the difference between the contracting parties will not be soon terminated.

The preceding calculation is made upon authoritative information. The republicans have, beyond all doubt, succeeded in procuring a respectable majority in favor of Mr. Jefferson. The project of the British party, adherents of Alexander Hamilton, was well known to Mr. Adams, previous to his leaving Braintree; and he counted upon losing every vote in South-Carolina, through their intrigues—but, to parry this stroke, he engaged his friends in New-England, before he left home, to drop Mr. Pinckney, 10 votes, viz. 2 in New-Hampshire, 6 in Massachusetts, and two in Vermont. This circumstance has been long known; but the secret has been preserved, in order to prevent British seduction. The election being over, we now come forward, and avow the facts to be as stated, upon the authority of the most confidential friend in Mr. Adams' own family. It was communicated in these words:

"My friend was determined that he would not be thrown out by a Pinckney. But aware of the deception which was to take place in South-Carolina, he had engaged his friends in New-England, to drop C. C. Pinckney, by at least 10 votes, securing to himself a majority of 2, in any event."

Mr. Adams and Mr. Burr, will be candidates for the Vice-Presidency; and as they have each an equal number of votes, the Senate of the United States are to choose one of them, by ballot, to be the Vice-President.

Thus, Alexander Hamilton, and his Anglo-Federal tool, C. C. Pinckney, are completely defeated, by a Federal counter-project, in which all American Federalists, as well as the pure Democrats, have occasion to rejoice.

THE KENTUCKY

ALMANAC,

SACRED TO THE MUSES.

ODE.

O, Popularity, thou giddy thing,
What grace, or profit dost thou bring?
Thou art not honesty, thou art not fame;
I cannot call the by a worthy name;
To say I hate thee, were not true,
Contempt is properly thy due.
I cannot love thee, and despise the too.
Thou art no patriot, but the veriest cheat,
That ever traff'd in deceit
In statecraft, bellowing loud
Freedom and phrenzy to the mobbing crowd;
And what can it then, if thou canst raise
Illuminations and buzzes,
Tho' half the country funk in one bright blaze?

A patriot; no, for thou dost hold in hate
The very peace and welfare of the state;
When anarchy afflicts the Sovereign's throne;
Then is the day, the night thy own,
Then is thy triumph, when the foe
Leaves some dark inflictions blow,
Or strong rebellion lays the country low.

Thou dost affect humility to hide
Some deep device of monstrous pride
Confidence and charity, pretend
For compassing some private end
And in a canting convient note
Long scripture passages can quote
When persecution rankle in thy throat,

Thou hast no sense of nature at thy heart
No ear for science and no eye for art,
Yet confidently dost decide at once
This man a wit, and that a dunce;
And, strange to tell, how e'er unjust
We takes thy disputes upon truth,
For, if the world will be deceived, it must.

In truth and justice thou hast no delight;
Virtue thou dost not know by sight;
But as the chymist by his skill
From dross and dregs a spirit can distill,
Lo from the prifons or the flews,
B lies, blasphemers, cheats and Jews,
Shall turn to heroes, if they serv'd thy views.

Thou dost but make a ladder of the mob
Whereby to climb into some courtly job
There, safe reposing, warm and snug,
Thou antifcret, with a patient thug;
Miscreans, begone, who cares for you,
Ye base born, brawling, clamorous crew;
You've serv'd my turn, and vagabonds adieu.

ANECDOTE.

An honest school master near London, having a wife whom he loved very affectionately, was to unfortunate as to perceive that he conceived a tenue for a smart young fellow whom he engaged as usher. The poor man was rendered fo miserable, by the perfidy and ingratitude of his rib; that he determined to destroy himself!—This resolution, after some preparatory reprobations, he communicated to his wife, declaring that he would that moment tuck himself up with his neck-cloth. To this the affected lady replied, "Alas! my dear, consider that neckcloth is very old, and can never sustain your weight. Do stop a moment, my love till I reach you your new cravat."
